The case of Charlotte E. Bates against the District of Columbia was reargued late yesterday before Chief Justice Bing-ham by Attorney Wharton E. Lester for the petitioner and Attorney A. B. and the case is of much importance. Unstreet and alley improvements, as well as sewer constructions, since the date of its passage, have been made. At a former hearing Chief Justice Bingham held the act to be unconstitutional, and quashed the assessment, but because of the far-reaching effect of the decision he uested the atterneys to reargue the lay nest, and the attorney for the Distric reapon made a motion to set aside th

Dr. Charles A. Stakely, which, as already stated in The Star, was read before the congregation at the service Sunday morning last. Dr. Stakely, with the view of ascertaining if his resignation was irrevocable, with instructions to report the result at an adjourned meeting of the congregation, to be held Thursday evening of next week.

Notwithstanding the action of the meeting, it was the opinion of many of those present that Dr. Stakely will accept the call which has been tendered to him.

Mr. Edgar Speiden was moderator of the meeting, and Mr. Moneure Burke, clerk of the church, was secretary. After the letter of Dr. Stakely announcing his resignation had been read by Mr. Burke, which paper has been already printed in The Star, Mr. E. H. Jackson spoke in favor of the resolution above referred to. The offering of the resignation of the pastor was, he said, a source of deep regret to him, and he hoped that it was not irrevocable. He spoke of the fact that when he came to Washington about thirteen years ago one of the first persons who extended to him a welcome was Dr. Stakely. It was his earnest desire that Dr. Stakely would see his way clear to retain his present pastorate.

Dr. Stakely's Work.

Dr. Stakely's Work.

Mr. Jackson referred to the fact that in the great St. Paul's Cathedral in London there is an inscription in Latin above one want to see the monument of the architect who built the structure you must look around you. The same remark would, he thought, be applicable to Dr. Stakely, and if one should wish to see his monument they would only have to look at the First Baptist Church of Washington, Mr. Jack Baptist Church of Washington, Mr. Jackson spoke also of other work done by Dr. Stakely since the latter came to this city, and said it would be to his everlasting credit that he had succeeded in bringing about a closer religious relationship between the white and colored Baptists of the District of Columbia than had ever previously existed.

Captain Graham seconded the proposition and said he was firmly convinced that if the church stood by Dr. Stakely he would withdraw his resignation. It was his opinion that their pastor did not want to leave Washington, and he was sure that the members of the church did not want him to leave them.

Should Accept Call.

"I came here with Jerry Huasen Holla St. hanta, Ga.," the prisoner said, "and a few hanta, Ga.," the prisoner said, "and a few days ago I was put out of my room because I was behind in my rent."

Charged With Vagrancy.

"I was in Anacostia," said Charles Mears, who was arraigned in the Police Court this morning charged with vagrancy. "I have the heart disease," he added, "but I'm not a vagrant."

Charles Averette Stakely is among the the heart disease."

The penalty was $10 fine or thirty days on the farm, and the court directed that Mears be given hospital treatment.

Charles Averette Stakely is among the younger ministers of the southern Baptist convention. He was born at Madisonville, Monroe county, Tenn., the 3d day of March. Monroe county, Tenn., the 3d day of March, 1859, but was reared in Alabama and Georgia. When about thirteen years of age he was baptized into the fellowship of the First Baptist Church of Monigomery, Ala., by Dr. D. W. Gwin. Soon afterward, his father dying, the family moved to La Grange, Ga., where young Stakely entered upon high school studies, and where, after having studied law under Mr. A. H. Cox, an eminent practitioner, he entered the legal profession, being scarcely nineteen years of age. He practiced in La Grange until he was nearly tweaty-two years of age. In the meantime, at the age of twenty, he was made county solicitor, which office he resigned to enter the ministry. His first charge was at Eiberton, Ga., the church at this place cailing him to ordination. During his pastorate at Eiberton, in 1882, he was married to Miss Jessie Davis, daughter of Rev. William H. Davis of Richmond county, Ga. From Eiberton he went to Augusta, where his labors were brief, and from Augusta to Char eston. S. C., where he was pastor of the Citadel Square Church for about four vers. gla. When about thirteen years of age he from Augusta to Char eston, S. Dr. Stakely lent well-known and valuable aid to the Baptist churches of Charleston in their recovery from the earthquake of 1886. In 1887 he was called to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church of this city, which charge he resigned, as heretofore stated in The Star, Sunday last, Dr. Stakely received his degree of A. M. from Mercer University, Georgia, in 1884; his degree of D. D. from Richmond College in 1889, and his degree of L.L. D. from Furman University, South Carolina, in 1898. The magnificent building of the First Baptist Church, corner of 16th and O streets northwest, in which the southern Baptist convention held its fiftieth anniversary, was erected during Dr. Stakely's pastorate and was largely the result of his own enterprise and zeal.

His Zeal and Fidelity.

Since Dr. Stakely's residence in Washing-ton he has labored incessantly for the upbuilding of his chosen denomination, and he has left no opportunity to do good escape his notice. He was the originator of the Baptist Social Union of Washington, and aiso of the joint conference of white and colored Baptist ministers of the District of Columbia. For ten or twelve years past he has had in course of preparation a work on the "Religious History of the Negro Race in the United States," and he was recently appointed by the Baptist ministers' conference of Washington to write a history of the Baptists of the District of Columbia. He has ever since coming to Washington been a trustee of Columbian University, and his efforts in behalf of that great inalso of the joint conference of white and stitution of learning are too well known to justify repetition at this time. Dr. Stakely was also for a number of years a trustee in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, at Louisville, Ky., and was the only trustee ever appointed from the District of Columbia, except the late Rev. Dr. Samson, who served some forty or fifty years ago. He was also for a considerable period a member of the board of managers of the American Baptist Publication Society at Philadelphia of the American Baptist Publication Society at Philadelphia.

In 1890 Dr. Stakely was one of the four delegates from the Southern Baptist convention, to the English Baptist convention, at Manchaster, England, where he had the In all of Dr. Stakely's church work he has had a valuable ally in the per-son of his wife. She has been conspicuous in the development of missionary interests in the First Baptist Church, and among the in the First Baptist Church, and among the Baptist women generally in the District of Columbia. She is president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Southern Baptist convention, and is, therefore, officially the head of all the Baptist women of the south, in so far as they are organized for Christian missions.
